FOREWORD

The 1987 Statistical Abstract of Colorado is the first edition published by the Business Research Division. This concise, easy-to-use book provides an essential reference volume filled with practical, frequently-needed information. It will be useful to people in business, economic development, research, planning, government, education and professional services as a means to familiarize themselves with Colorado's economic, social, political and geographic environment.

The title of this publication is copyrighted and used by permission of Thomas G. Tyler and Transrep Bibliographics who produced the Statistical Abstract of Colorado, 1976-77.

The Abstract could not have been compiled without the cooperation of many individuals and organizations. Special thanks go to Ron Ceolla, E. J. Christensen, Robert Boyce, Linda Daniels, John Joram, Bill O'Connor, Dave Peters, Joyce Porreca, and Diane Schooley.

The contents of the Abstract were taken from many sources. All data from either censuses and surveys or administrative records are subject to error arising from a number of factors. The Business Research Division cannot accept responsibility for the accuracy or limitations of the data presented here, other than for those which it collects. Responsibility for the selection of material and its proper presentation, however, rests with the Business Research Division.

PREFACE

The Statistical Abstract of Colorado is a summary of the statistical economic, social and political institutions of Colorado. It is designed to be a convenient volume for statistical reference and as a guide to other statistical publications and sources.

Footnotes and sources are located at the end of each individual table. The original sources usually contain additional statistical detail and conceptual discussions which cannot be presented here. Data obtained from an agency that are not available in its publications are denoted in the source notes as "unpublished data."

The Abstract is organized so that information is first presented at the state level to facilitate comparisons between Colorado and the other mountain states. Next, data are presented at the county level with corresponding state totals. Finally, where applicable and/or available, data at the city and special unit levels are presented. This means that data on a particular topic will appear in more than one place within the same section.

Data on Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs), Consolidated Metropolitan Statistical Areas (CMSAs) and Primary Metropolitan Statistical Areas (PMSAs) are also presented. The concept of a metropolitan area is one of a large population nucleus, together with adjacent communities which have a high degree of economic and social integration with that nucleus. Each MSA must include at least: (1) one city with 50,000 or more inhabitants, or (2) a U.S. Census Bureau-defined urbanized area of at least 50,000 inhabitants and a total MSA population of at least 100,000 (75,000 in New England).

For additional information on data presented, please consult the source publications available in local libraries or write to the agencies indicated in the source notes.

Users of the Abstract are urged to make their data needs known for consideration in planning future editions. Suggestions and comments should be sent to the ABSTRACT EDITOR, Business Research Division, University of Colorado, Boulder, Boulder, Colorado 80309.

POPULATION

The U.S. Bureau of the Census conducts a census of the population once every ten years. The statistics gathered represent a complete count of the population in that it attempts to account for every person, each person's residence, and for other characteristics including sex, age, family relations, etc.

The Census Bureau defines a residence as the address of a person's "usual" residence; for example, where a person usually eats and sleeps. This may or may not correspond to the person's legal or voting residence, but for the most part they are the same. The Bureau considers persons in the armed services as residents of the area in which their installations are located. College students are considered residents of the community in which they reside while attending college.

In this section you will find data concerning sex, race, and age as well as population projections of these variables.

To provide standards for Federal agencies in the preparation and publication of statistics relating to metropolitan areas, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) has designated areas known as Consolidated Metropolitan Statistical Areas (CMSAs), and Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs).

CMSAs are large metropolitan complexes within which individual components have been defined. An MSA is a geographic area with a large population base together with adjacent communities which have a high degree of economic and social integration with that base. These terms went into effect on June 30, 1983 replacing the terms Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) and Standard Consolidated Statistical Area (SCSA).

Data concerning Colorado verterans can be found in Tables 2 and 18. This data is supplied by the U.S. Veterans Administration in Washington.

The Census Bureau also supplies the Current Population Reports (CPR), known as the P Series. This publication contains national, regional, state, and occasionally CMSA and MSA population statistics which may be used to update specific tables in this Abstract.

HEALTH AND VITAL STATISTICS

Vital statistics are compiled for the country as a whole by the National Center for Health Statistics and are published in its annual report, Vital Statistics of the United States. In this section you will find data on vital statistics, including information on births; deaths; abortions; marriages and divorces; as well as information on the number of active non-federal physicians and dentists and the number of patients in mental health facilities.

The Annual Report of Vital Statistics, published by the Health Statistics and Vital Records section of the Colorado Department of Health, is the principal source of vital statistics in Colorado. It provides the data that can be found in Tables 25 through 35. Included in these tables are such information as the number of selected diseases, resident births and deaths, marriages and divorces, the number of abortions, etc.

In regard to births and deaths, the Statistical Abstract of the United States defines the term resident as indicating all births and deaths among residents of a specified area regardless of where the event occurred, while recorded is the term used to identify all births and deaths occurring in the specified area regardless of the usual residence. The birth and death figures in this section pertain to resident data only.

Information in Tables 24 and 25, which includes data on the number of patients in mental health facilities and the number of non-federal physicians and dentists, was provided by the Statistical Abstract of the United States.

The U.S. Public Health Service provides an annual publication, Health, United States, that contains information on health status and determinants, utilization of health resources, and health care resources and expenditures. Also, regional and state data for some items is included.

LABOR FORCE, EMPLOYMENT AND EARNINGS

Data on the labor force, its distribution by occupation and industry, and the supply of and conditions of labor are presented in this section. Most statistics presented here are obtained by one of two methods: (1) household interviews or questionnaires, or (2) reports of establishment payroll records. Each method provides data which the other cannot suitably supply. While population characteristics are readily obtainable only from the household surveys, detailed industrial classifications can be readily derived from establishment records.

The Current Population Survey, a monthly publication produced by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, provides the basis for information on the employment status of the population.

The Handbook of Labor Statistics defines employed persons as comprising "all those who, during the survey week, worked at all as paid employees in their own business or profession, or on their own farm, or who worked 15 hours or more as unpaid workers in an enterprise operated by a family member." Also included are all those who are temporarily absent from their jobs due to such factors as illness or vacation.

Unemployed persons are defined as those "who did not work during the survey week, who made specific efforts to find a job within the previous four weeks and who were available to work during the survey week except for temporary illness."

The civilian labor force is composed of all civilians classified as employed or unemployed. The employment rate is defined as the number of unemployed expressed as a percent of the civilian labor force. Persons 16 years of age or older not classified as employed or unemployed are counted as not in the labor force.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics is the main source of data on nonagricultural employment. Its publications include Employment Earnings: States and Areas, Geographic Profile of Employment and Unemployment, monthly and annual surveys of Work Stoppages, and a Directory of National Unions and Employee Associations.

INCOME AND WEALTH

The Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA), of the U.S. Department of Commerce, has made estimates of personal income by type and industrial source, covering all economic and metropolitan statistical areas and counties in the nation for selected years from 1929 through 1982. Information published by the BEA provided a significant basis for the information found in this section.

Personal income is the current income received by persons from all sources minus their personal contributions for social insurance. "Persons" may be classified as individuals, nonprofit institutions, private trust funds, and private noninsured pension funds.

The earnings components of personal income are allocated on a place of work basis. These earnings are then converted to a place of residence basis by means of a residence adjustment factor. Property income and transfer payments are then added to earnings, resulting in a total income on a place of residence basis. These data are provided in Tables 58 and 63. The earnings by place of work basis is useful in the analysis of the income structure of a given area in terms of markets and purchasing power. This information can be found in Table 69.

In order to classify families and unrelated individuals as being above or below the poverty level, a comparison is made of their calendar year income to an income cutoff of "poverty threshold." The income cutoffs vary by family size, number of children, and age of the family householder. Information regarding poverty thresholds is found in Table 62.

Other information provided in this section includes information on the number of sole proprietorships/receipts, depreciation, net income, the Consumer Price Index (CPI) and the purchasing power of the dollar.

EDUCATION

This section presents information on public education and includes the level achieved by students, and the availability and enrollments of schools, colleges and universities.

The primary source of data found in this section was obtained from the Certificated Personnel and Pupil Membership, Fall 1984 edition published by the Department of Education, State of Colorado.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census also supplied information found in this section. The population census has contained information on school enrollment since 1840 and an educational attainment since 1940. This information is based on direct interviews and is generally concerned with school enrollment and level of education achieved. The Bureau of the Census categorizes this information based on age, sex, and other population characteristics.

Information related to higher education enrollments by race and appropriations made for higher education on a per capita basis was supplied by the Chronicle of Higher Education and the Colorado Commission on Higher Education.

HOUSING

Along with the decennial Census of Population, a Census of Housing is also compiled. This census provides basic information about people's living arrangements.

The Bureau of the Census has defined a housing unit to be a house, apartment, mobile home or trailer, group of rooms, or a single room occupied or intended as separate living quarters; for example, when the occupants live and eat separately from other people in the building and have their own access from the outside or through a common hall. The Bureau has also defined a household as that which consists of a person or persons occupying a housing unit.

In the 1980 Census a householder was the person listed in column one on the questionnaire. This is a revision from the 1970 census where the husband was always designated the "head" of the family.

The 1980 Census of Housing: General Housing Characteristics, Colorado, provided most of the data found in this section. This information was obtained from the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census.

Table 97 provides information on the number of persons living in group quarters, by type of quarters. All persons not living in households are classified as living in group quarters. These include institutions offering care, as well as dormitories, barracks, monasteries, missions, and large rooming or boarding houses that contain at least nine persons that are unrelated to the resident who maintains the quarters.

[a] Vacant units intended for seasonal occupancy or held for migratory labor. If such units are occupied by persons who have a usual residence elsewhere, they are classified as vacant.

[b] All occupied units plus vacant units intended for year-round use.

[c] Units occupied as the usual place of residence of one person or groups of persons. Because a household consists of all persons who occupy a housing unit, the count of occupied units and households is identical.

[a] Population per household equals population per occupied housing unit.

[b] Value data are limited to owner-occupied and vacant-for-sale one-family houses on less than ten acres, without a commercial establishment or medical office on the property. Mobile homes, boats, trailers, and owner-occupied non-condominium units in multifamily buildings are excluded.

[c] Contract rent data are tabulated for specified renter-occupied and specified vacant-for-rent housing units, and exclude one-family houses on ten acres or more.

SOCIAL INSURANCE

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Social Security Administration, is the source of statistics on programs related to old age, survivors, disability and health insurance. These programs, commonly referred to as Social Security, provide monthly cash benefits to retired or disabled insured workers and their dependents and to survivors of insured workers.

Information regarding payments made to individuals for public assistance, old age, survivors, disability and health insurance can be found in this section.

Unemployment insurance data is supplied by the U.S. Employment and Training Administration and the State Employment Security Agency. In Colorado, the Department of Labor and Employment is the cooperating agency. Unemployment insurance is funded through a Federal unemployment tax levied on the taxable payrolls of most employers.

Data on medicare and medicaid programs are found in the Medicare Annual Report published by the Health Care Financing Administration in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

QUALITY OF LIFE

The quality of life is a concept that is not easily measured. Traditional measures of economic success, such as gross state product, were once considered the only indicators of any value in measuring the quality of life. However, as levels of mobility continue to increase quality of life becomes an idea of increasing importance to our population. By following trends in living conditions the progression or regression in quality of life can be computed.

These tables constitute a list of both economic and noneconomic factors that most people accept as representing determinants of the quality of life. These can be classified by such broad categories as community living conditions, along with economic, public, educational, cultural and natural resources. Within these sections, specific indicators are grouped into divisions such as housing, population, health, education, income, employment, welfare, climate, public safety, government expenditures, etc.

The tables in this section are designed to permit the reader to make a comparison of the quality of life in Colorado with the quality of life in other Mountain states as well as the nation as a whole.

ECONOMIC INDICATORS AND PRICES

The producer price index, previously known as the wholesale price index, is the oldest continuous statistical series published by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). This index measures the average changes of prices received in the primary markets of the United States by producers of commodities in all stages of processing. Information regarding this index can be found in Tables 126 and 128.

The BLS publishes two consumer price indexes: one reflecting the buying habits of all urban households (CPI-U) and one reflecting the buying habits of urban wage earners and clerical workers (CPI-W). The method of measuring homeownership costs in the CPI-U was changed to a rental equivalence approach in January 1983. This entailed calculating homeownership costs of shelter based on the implicit rent owners would pay to rent the homes they own. The former approach incorporated both investment as well as consumption costs in its measure. This abstract presents information regarding the CPI-U which can be found in Tables 128, 131 and 132.

Table 136 provides statistics on specific indicators of the Colorado economy. This information was compiled through the use of unpublished data supplied by the Colorado Department of Revenue.

Data representing consumer energy prices based on U.S. and Denver averages can be found in Table 133.

Statistics on the average revenue per kilowatt-hour of electricity are presented in Table 134 by class of service. This information was taken from the Financial and Statistical Review, published by the Public Service Company of Colorado.

GEOGRAPHY AND CLIMATE

Environmental factors, such as geography and climate, have a great impact on the quality of life and economy of a state. Presented here are factors related to Colorado's geography and climate, including such aspects as temperature, length of seasons and air quality.

Data related to temperature, precipitation, heating and cooling degree days, and other climatological factors are supplied by the Environmental Data and Information Service of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The 30-year normals and extremes used in the climatological data are based on records for the 30 years between 1941 and 1970. This 30-year period will be shifted after the 1980 records are completed.

Data on land area owned by Federal agencies presented in this section was supplied by the annual Public Land Statistics published by the U.S. Department of Interior, Bureau of Land Management.

The Statistical Abstract of the United States provided the data on land under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, as well as the data on land, water and elevations in Colorado.

The Colorado Department of Health, Air Quality Control Commission supplied the data for the tables related to air quality in Colorado and Denver metropolitan areas.

AGRICULTURE

This section presents statistics on farms and farm population; farm income expenditures and debt. Farm output, productivity, and marketings are also presented here along with information on foreign trade in agricultural products; specific crops and livestock.

Over time the U.S. Bureau of the Census has used varying definitions of a farm. For the 1974, 1978 and 1982 Census of Agriculture, a farm was defined as any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold, or would have been sold duuring the census year.

Farmland refers to all land under the control of a farm operator and considered as part of his farm, including land not actually under cultivation or not used for pasture or grazing. Rent-free land was included as part of the farm only if the operator had sole use of it. Land use for pasture or grazing on a per head basis that was neither owned nor leased by a farm operator is not included except for grazing lands controlled by grazing associations leased on a per acre basis.

Agricultural employment information comes from the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of Economic Analysis, Regional Economic Information Systems.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture provides information on government payments and makes estimates of the number of farms in the U.S. It also collects reports on nonresident alien ownership of agricultural land. This information can be found in its publication titled: Foreign Ownership of U.S. Agricultural Land.

FORESTRY, FISHERIES AND MINERALS

The principal sources of data regarding Colorado's timber resources are: the 1983 Statistical Yearbook of the Western Lumber Industry, published by the Western Wood Products Association; and Land Areas of the National Forest System, published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Forest Service. These sources provided much of the data found in this section regarding the area, ownership, and timber resources of commercial timberland and national forests.

Also presented here are statistics related to the mineral resources found in the state of Colorado and surrounding areas. Information regarding Colorado's mineral resources and production come primarily from the following sources: National Gas Annual and Coal Production, published by the U.S. Department of Energy; Gas Facts, American Gas Association; and Basic Petroleum Data Book, American Petroleum Institute.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture provides the information found in this section regarding U.S. Forest and nonagricultural landholdings. This information is supplied by its publication, Foreign Ownership of U.S. Agricultural Land Through December 31, 1984.

NOTE: mbf = million board feet; mcf = million cubic feet.

[a] Commercial timberland is forest land which is producing or is capable of producing crops of industrial wood and not withdrawn from timber utilization by statute or administrative regulation. Areas qualifying as commercial timberland have the capability of producing in excess of 20 cubic feet per acre per year of industrial wood in natural stands. Currently inaccessible and inoperable areas are included.

[b] Includes Indian lands.

[c] Net volume of the saw log portion of live sawtimber trees in board feet, International ¼-inch log rule.

[d] Net volume in cubic feet of the sawtimber and pole timber trees from stump to a minimum 4-inch top (of central stem) outside bark or to the point where the central stem breaks into limbs.

[a] The Rocky Mountain states of Idaho and Nevada had no natural gas production for these years.

[b] Data includes dry gas and condensate wells only.

[c] Included in U.S. total. Specific data for these years is unavailable.

[d] As defined by American Gas Association, "Net Wellhead Production" equals "Gross Production" less gas for repressuring and therefore includes natural gas liquids.

NOTE: Excludes silt, culm, refuse bank, slurry dam and dredge production.

(D) = Data withheld to avoid disclosure of information about individual companies.

[a] Average mine price is calculated by dividing the total f.o.b. mine value of the coal produced by the total production.

[b] Open market includes all coal sold on the open market to other coal companies or consumers.

[c] Captive includes all coal used by the producing company or sold to affiliated or parent companies.

[d] Total may not equal to sum due to independent rounding.

(D) = Data withheld to avoid disclosure of information about individual companies.

[a] Computed at the mine level by dividing production by the total number of days worked during the year.
[b] Maximum amount of coal that can be produced on a daily basis as reported by mining companies on government forms.
[c] Computed by dividing average daily production by daily productive capacity and multiplying by 100.

CONSTRUCTION

This section contains data on the construction industry and on various indicators of its activity. It also supplies data on housing units and their characteristics, on financing, public housing and on nonresidential buildings.

The principal source for data is the U.S. Bureau of the Census. The Bureau monitors additions to the housing base in approximately 16,000 jurisdictions which issue permits. These findings are published in its monthly Housing Units Authorized by Building Permits and Public Contracts.

Other data found in this section are the number of construction establishments, employment and payroll for contract construction. The data is supplied by County Business Patterns, published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

Additional data on construction in various states are available, including the monthly Dodge Construction Potentials, available from F. W. Dodge Company, a division of McGraw-Hill, Inc.; the Construction Review, published monthly by the Bureau of Industrial Economics of the U.S. Department of Commerce; and Construction Reports: Value of New Construction Put in Place, published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

MANUFACTURING

The U.S. Bureau of the Census defines a manufacturing establishment as consisting of a single physical location at which the natural products of farms, forest, fisheries and mines are transformed into new products.

A census of manufactures is conducted every five years. This census is a complete census in that records are obtained for every manufacturing plant with one or more employees.

An Annual Survey of Manufactures is conducted in the years between censuses and provides a more general measure of manufacturing. The estimates from this survey are provided by a sampling which includes all large plants and a representative sampling of small plants. Government owned and operated plants are excluded from this data.

Another major contributor to information found in this section was the Colorado Department of Labor and Employment, Division of Employment and Training. The information they provided came primarily from unpublished data, which included data on the number of units, number of employees, and payroll of manufacturing entities.

[a] Includes only the value of manufactured products exported by the producing plants.

[b] Employment is limited to paid employees in manufacturing plants producing the export product. The number of employees related to export shipments was calculated for each establishment, aggregated by industry and state, and inflated to a level comparable to the plant value of exports reported in the official foreign trade statistics at port value.

Trade	9.5	844.8
Business services	5.2	575.3
Transportation, communication and utilities	2.8	303.9
Other[d]	6.7	445.0

NOTE: The export-related employment data shown do not include jobs involved in the export of manufactured goods such as farm products, minerals and various services sold to foreign buyers such as transportation, insurance, motion pictures, financial services, etc.

[a] Civilian employment is the sum of manufacturing employment estimates from the 1980 Annual Survey of Manufactures and nonmanufacturing employment estimates from the 1980 Current Population Survey, Bureau of the Census, Table 5A, Employed Persons by Industry Group, Class of Worker, and Color for the United States.

[b] Private sector employment is the civilian employment less the federal, state and local government estimates from the source noted in the previous footnote.

[c] Total employment related to manufacturing exports is the sum of employment directly calculated for the plants shipping the exported products, the supplying industries and service organizations, and the central administrative offices and auxiliaries. For manufacturing industries, employment is limited to paid employees in manufacturing plants, while for manufacturing industries, employment includes an estimate for working proprietors and partners.

[d] Includes mining and agriculture.

TRANSPORTATION

Because transportation is at the backbone of any economy, it is important to study the statistics related to this sector of the economy. This section presents statistics on revenues, passenger and freight traffic volume, and employment in various revenue-producing modes of the transportation industry. Data is also presented on commuting travel; highway mileage, construction and cost; motor vehicle travel, accidents, sales, and registrations; as well as data on civil air transportation – both passenger and cargo.

The U.S. Department of Transportation provides data on roads and highways, tax receipts and vehicles in Highway Statistics, which is a publication of the Federal Highway Administration. Information about licenses and drivers of motor vehicles presented in Tables 249, 250, 251, 259, 266 and 267 are provided by the Colorado Department of Revenue, in its Annual Report and unpublished data. This agency also provides data on vehicle accidents found in Tables 249, 250, 251, 260, 261 and 268.

Air traffic information is provided by the Federal Aviation Administration, of the U.S. Department of Transportation, in their publications, FAA Air Traffic Activity and Airport Activity Statistics of Certified Route Carriers. Information from these sources can be found in Tables 272 and 273. Also Table 248 provides information on the number of civilian pilots in the mountain states.

NOTE: Apportionment is based on full fiscal year funding and tax payments. Detail may not add to total due to independent rounding.

[a] Federal Highway Administration Apportionment, less original 4¢/gal. tax portion.

[c] Discretionary funding. Based on Federal Aviation Administration October 1982 distribution apportionment for 1983.

[d] Energy Department estimate of gasoline use in 1983, adjusted to include all motor fuel. State distribution based on 1980 state motor fuel consumption published by Federal Highway Administration. Adjustment of truck tax does not increase the revenues for highways, mass transit or airports.

[e] Gain indicates state received grants in excess of fuel tax payment; loss indicates fuel tax greater than grants.

Major collectors	54.3	53.3	59.1	35.9	10.4	2.9

NOTE: Data reflect speeds of all vehicles on sections of roads posted for 55 miles per hour speed limits and are based on an annual classification of speed limit enforcement required from each highway agency.

[a] Median speed is the speed at or below which 50 percent of the vehicles are traveling.
[b] 85th percentile is the speed at or below which 85 percent of the vehicles are traveling.

NOTE: This table presents combined summaries of the highway finances of all government agencies in net amounts; duplications that would otherwise have resulted from interfund or intergovernmental transfers have been removed. Data may include estimates.

[a] Excludes short-term notes and refunding bond issues.

[b] Excludes amounts allocated for collection expenses and nonhighway purposes. Revenues are segregated according to the collecting agency. Amounts shown for federal agencies are mostly grants-in-aid payments.

[c] Disbursements are classified by system on which expended rather than by expending agencies; capital outlay in county and other local rural roads includes expenditure from federal, state, and local funds.

[d] Summary of right-of-way costs which are included in local, state, and federal categories.

COMMUNICATIONS

The communications media covered in this section include newspapers, radios, television and telephones.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) regulates wire and radio communications and licenses radio and television stations. The FCC has jurisdiction over domestic and overseas telegraph carriers and the Communications Satellite Corporation (Comsat); however, it does not have jurisdiction over a large number of telephone carriers that are engaged in intrastate service. It is estimated, however, that the gross operating revenue reported to the FCC covers a significant amount of the revenues of all U.S. telephone companies.

Private radio stations represent the largest and most diverse group of licenses regulated by the FCC. The reports filed by the broadcasting industry cover the majority of radio and television stations operating in the United States.

Although the U.S. Bureau of the Census considers newspaper publishing and other print media to be manufacturing, we have presented them here since they compete with electronic media in providing a source of communication.

County Business Patterns, 1983, Colorado, published by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, was one of the major sources of information provided in this section.

POWER AND ENERGY

The Energy Information Administration, U.S. Department of Energy, provides data on the status of electric and gas service industries and data on the consumption of electricity, natural gas, gasoline and fuel oil found in this section.

Of particular value in constructing the tables found here were the following publications of the U.S. Department of Energy: Petroleum Supply Annual, State Energy Price Expenditure Report, Electric Power Annual and the National Gas Annual. These publications contain national and state data on the production of electricity, capacity of generating plants, fuels used in energy production, energy sales and consumption, construction costs and production expenses of power plants.

Another source of data used in this section was the American Gas Association. Its yearbook, Gas Facts, provided data on gas utilities including sales, revenues, customers, prices and other financial and operating statistics.

Statistics regarding the consumption of motor fuels was provided by the Colorado Department of Revenue in its Annual Report, and by the Federal Highway Administration, U.S. Department of Transportation, in its Highway Statistics.

At this time, statistics are not readily available on newer energy sources; for example, solar and geothermal energy. This is primarily due to its limited use and its experimental stage.

FINANCE, BANKING, INSURANCE, AND REAL ESTATE

Banks in Colorado are organized under both federal law and Colorado law. State chartered banks and national banks, organized under federal law, are supervised by the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board and its publications, FSLIC-Insured Institutions: Summary of Savings Accounts by Geographic Area and Savings and Home Financing Source Book, provided much of the information found in Tables 306 through 325.

Other sources of information on banking statistics include the Federal Reserve Bulletin, the FDIC Annual Report and Bank Operating Statistics, published by the FDIC, and the Credit Union Report and Credit Union National Association Yearbook, published by the Credit Union National Association.

The primary sources of data on insurance companies in Colorado are Insurance Facts, published by the Insurance Information Institute, and Life Insurance Factbook, published by the American Council of Life Insurance.

Employment and payroll information for banking, insurance, and real estate is provided in Table 321. The information found in this table was obtained from County Business Patterns, Colorado, published by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL TRADE

In 1929 the first Census of Business was taken. This was replaced in 1972 by three separate reports: The Census of Retail Trade, The Census of Wholesale Trade, and The Census of Selected Service Industries. In 1977 a report on Major Retail Centers was added that provides information on major shopping ~~areas~~ within the Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census has developed basic classifications in the trade and service areas and has placed these establishments into three groups: (1) wholesale trade, which includes establishments engaged primarily in selling merchandise to retailers, to institutions, to industrial, commercial and professional users, or to other wholesalers; (2) retail trade, which includes establishments engaged primarily in selling merchandise for personal, household, or farm consumption; and (3) service industries, which are engaged primarily in supplying a wide range of services to individuals and businesses.

This section includes data on wholesale and retail trade establishments, their sales, and a breakdown of sales per establishment. This information is included in Tables 328 and 331. The statistics for these tables were provided by the Statistical Abstract of the United States, published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. The Statistical Abstract also provided the statistics found in Tables 326 and 327, which cover the number of retail and wholesale establishments in the Mountain states, and a breakdown of sales by state.

Information by kind of business can be found in Tables 329, 330 and 332. These tables include information on the number of reporting units, number of employees, and the amount of payroll for wholesale and retail establishments. A breakdown by counties is also included in Tables 334 and 337.

Wholesale and retail sales as reported to the Colorado Department of Revenue are included in Tables 333, 335 and 336. The information found in these tables was taken from the 1982, 1983, and 1984 Annual Reports, supplied by the Colorado Department of Revenue.

PERSONAL AND BUSINESS SERVICES

A service can be thought of as an intangible since no actual product ever changes hands. Services are generally performed by business and nonprofit establishments for individuals, business firms, government agencies and nonprofit organizations.

Services can include, among other things, hotels and motels, amusement services, repair services, health services, and other professional services. These are available in greatest detail at the national and state levels.

The Standard Industrial Classification System lists services with SIC codes from 70 to 89. This section includes establishments covered by personal services (SIC code 72), automative repair, services and garages (SIC code 75), business services (SIC code 73). and services not classified elsewhere (SIC code 89). This information can be found in Tables 339 through 343.

Tables 338, 339 and 344 present information on the receipts of selected service industries. The statistics for these tables were provided by the 1982 Census of Service Industries: Colorado, published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

The information on professional services employment (SIC codes 891 and 893) was provided by County Business Patterns 1983: Colorado, published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

TOURISM AND RECREATION

Tourism and recreation play a vital role in the Colorado economy. Unfortunately, the impacts of tourism are difficult to measure in that they tend to be represented by selected services which are often thought of as intangibles and because they also are represented in the retail trade and transportation sectors. However, this section attempts to provide measurements that will be of use to the reader.

Information regarding employment and payroll statistics in the tourist industry can be found in Tables 351, 356, 357 and 358. The information was provided by County Business Patterns, 1983, Colorado, published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

Tables 348 and 349 present data on the economic impact of tourism in the state of Colorado. This information was compiled by the Business Research Division of the University of Colorado, Boulder, and is presented in its publication, Colorado Travel and Tourism Statistics.

Colorado Travel and Tourism Statistics also provided the data found in Table 350. This table covers statistics related to the number of fishing and hunting licenses that were distributed in the 1980-83 period and the amount of revenue that was generated from the sale of these licenses.

HEALTH, EDUCATION AND CULTURAL SERVICES

This section covers establishments and employees who perform services related to health, education and cultural services, and the financial aspects that are involved. It is in this way that this section differs from Vital Statistics and Health found in Section 2, and from Education found in Section 5. These two sections concern themselves primarily with the availability and utilization of these services. County Business Patterns, Colorado, published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, provided much of the information found in this section.

Tables 367 through 373 are concerned with statistics regarding Colorado public schools. According to the National Center for Educational Statistics, public schools are defined as schools controlled and supported by local, state, or federal governmental agencies, while private schools are those controlled and supported by religious organizations or by private persons or organizations. The Statistical Abstract of the United States provided the data found in Tables 374 and 375, which present information on State Arts Agencies and Foundations.

GOVERNMENT, FINANCE AND EMPLOYMENT

Revenues and expenditures of governmental units are among the most documented fields. This is due primarily to governmental units being required to maintain records in order to answer to constituents and in order to serve the needs of higher governmental units.

This section presents data on revenues, expenditures, debt, assessed property values, and government employment within the state, including local governments. Statistics relating to state and local governments are compiled primarily by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

A report on government finances is issued annually by the U.S. Bureau of of the Census. This report includes nationwide totals for state and local government, by type, and for local governments by state. Also issued annually are a series of publications on state, city, county, and school finances. This series also includes information on city, county and other public employment.

A major contributor to this section was the Colorado Department of Local Affairs, Division of Local Government. Their publication, Local Government Financial Compendium, provided a significant amount of information found in this section. Other major contributors include the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report, published by the Colorado Department of Administration and the Annual Report, published by the Colorado Department of Revenue.

GOVERNMENT AND ELECTIONS

This section is concerned primarily with Presidential, congressional and gubernatorial elections. However, information is also presented on Black and female officeholders, voting-age population, and voter participation.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census publishes information about the voting-age population in each decennial census. It also provides estimates between decennial censuses in its Current Population Reports. Information on voting and voting-age population can be found in Tables 414 and 419. This information is further broken into party affiliations in Tables 416, 423 and 424.

Types of local government units and characteristics of the voting-age population are also included in this section. Tables 422 and 426 present information on the number of governmental units by type in Colorado. Table 426 presents this information broken down by special government units.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census defines the different types of government units as follows:

(1) A municipality is a political subdivision within which a municipal corporation has been established to provide general local government for a specific population concentrated in a defined area.

(2) A school district is an entity providing local public education. There are 185 school districts within Colorado.

(3) A special district has been established to perform one or more specific functions dealing with natural resources, housing, human services, urban renewal, hospitals, fire protection, libraries, or public transit.

COURTS AND LAW ENFORCEMENT

The number of crimes presented in this section consist only of those reported to the police. Many crimes are not reported to law enforcement agencies and therefore are not counted in the preparation of crime statistics. For this reason caution must be exercised when making comparisons of law enforcement figures. Also, reporting procedures vary from place to place and are subject to change over time, adding to the difficulty of using these numbers for comparison purposes.

The principal sources of data for this section include the Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Department of Justice, Crime in the United States, Uniform Crime Reports and the Colorado Department of Revenue, Annual Report.

Other sources that contributed to the data found in this section include three publications of the Bureau of Justice Statistics, U.S. Department of Justice: Sourcebook of Criminal Justice Statistics, Prisoners in State and Federal Institutions, and Bureau of Justice Statistics Bulletin: Death Row Prisoners.

Data concerning the population and per capita expenditures of correctional facilities in Colorado is supplied by the Colorado Department of Corrections, Annual Statistical Report.

The Colorado State Judicial Department, Clerk of the Supreme Court, provided data on legal services in the state of Colorado.

[a] Actual offenses known to law enforcement officers, not the number of persons who committed them or number of injuries they caused.

[b] Includes murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault.

[c] Includes breaking and entering (burglary), larceny, and auto theft.

[d] Clearance of an offense occurs when an offender is identified, charged, and taken into custody, or occasionally when some element beyond law enforcement control precludes formal charges against the offender.
